

A Promise to Keep

My siblings made me an aunt at a very early age

Which made me quickly grow out of the "playing with baby doll" stage

An aunt and niece relationship is a special bond to have

From giving advice, to cooking, to shopping and sharing lots of laughs

You took pride in how you looked, from your clothes, nails and beautiful hair

You would step out in confidence knowing no one could compare

You were the true essence of a Daddy's Girl through and through

Because anyone who knew you, would know Herbert E. Toliver too

But about ten years ago, I made a promise to your mom

To look after you and try my best to protect you from all harm.

You had some challenges to face and you did the best you could do

I helped you along the way, praying the Lord would see you through

And even on those days when you didn't feel your best

You always wanted your looks to impress

All my nieces and nephews I love with all my heart

But I wasn't prepared for you to be the first one to depart

After hanging up the phone that day, I remembered the promise that had to be kept

I was coming to see about you, not knowing you had already left

Kim, I loved you like my own and this is why it hurts so deep

But your Auntie Barbara will always love you and that's a promise I can keep.
