Tribute

The sun has set in a world so bright; you were that sun that gave us the light. Our hearts are heavy because you are gone. Absent from the body but the spirit lives on. So many tears we shed when we got the news, but how can we continue, when we don't have you? Do we mourn because you are no longer here, or do we rejoice because you are there? Heavy is the head that wears the crown, you were jeweled on your top, and there is gold on the ground. We won't say goodbye, but we will see you soon, whether a kiss from a butterfly, or the flowers the bloom. We will celebrate you tomorrow and every day that comes, you've adorned your wings and will continue on.
